Let's look at the A-B-C'S of premium gasoline quality!

NEXT MONDAY, the Esso Standard Oil Company will present the finest gasoline in Esso history . . . the best gasoline you can buy ... NEW "TOTAL POWER" ESSO EXTRA.

In the confusion of gasoline claims, it may be useful to the car-owning public to review the background of leadership behind this fuel ... and the new ingredients of still greater leadership which will be in it. To take a look at the A-B-C's, so to speak, and not get mixed up in the X-Y-Z's!

Esso Extra Gasoline is now used by more buyers of premium fuel than any other brand in the area where it is sold. And this has been the case for years. This can only reflect true quality measured and proved in actual use by millions of motorists.

Behind this record lies a brilliant history of research leadership. And it is well to remember that ... as engines become more powerful and performance demands more complex, chemical and mechanical know-how become even more essential in creating good fuels than mere refining capacity!

Here are a few of the pioneering accomplishments of Esso Standard Oil Company, characteristic of the skill behind the gasoline and motor oils we make today:

Let's look at the AD-65 of premium gasoline quality!

TEXT MONDAY, the Esso Standard Oil L Company will present the finest gasoline in Esso history . . . the best gasoline you can buy . . . NEW "TOTAL POWER" ESSO EXTRA.

In the confusion of gasoline claims, it may be useful to the car-owning public to review the background of leadership behind this fuel ... and the new ingredients of still greater leadership which will be in it. To take a look at the A-B-C's, so to speak, and not get mixed up in the X-Y-Z's!

Esso Extra Gasoline is now used by more buyers of premium fuel than any other brand in the area where it is sold. And this has been the case for years. This can only reflect true quality measured and proved in actual use by millions of motorists.

Behind this record lies a brilliant history of research leadership. And it is well to remember that ... as engines become more powerful and performance demands more complex, chemical and mechanical know-how become even more essential in creating good fuels than mere refining capacity!

Here are a few of the pioneering accomplishments of Esso Standard Oil Company, characteristic of the skill behind the gasoline and motor oils we make today:

1929 FIRST with today's basic production process for tetra-ethyl lead ... the anti-knock additive.

1930 FIRST with gasolines "tailored" by seasons and climate 10 zones for our customers' year-round performance needs.

Entered as second class mail matter at Cumberland, Maryland, under the act of March 3, 1879.

A Slight Delay Eugene Varga, Hungarian-born Soviet economist, predicts that the economic system of the United States is headed for a crash. Production is rising, he admits, but, he adds darkly, such a rise "only underscores the correctness of the basic position of Marx's teachings ... the level of production is at the highest just before an economic crisis. It might be said, with equal aptness, that a depression is at its lowest just before an upturn.

In 1946, Varga predicted an early depression in the United States. In 1947, he stuck to his story that a depression was just around the corner. In 1948, with no U. S. depression in sight, Varga said that none might develop until about 10 years after the end of the war. Meanwhile, he suggested, it might be well for Russia to cooperate with the West. This heresy was promptly

Though Varga had been personal economic adviser to Stalin, and had been considered Russia's top economist, he was dismissed from the Soviet Academy of Sciences for going against the party line. The political science institution he headed was dissolved.

In 1949, Varga recanted, repudiated his "errors," and denied that he was "of Western orientation" or an "anti-Soviet traitor to the working class." Now he is back in the old groove of predicting dire happenings in the United States.

Communist leaders believe in American depression because they need one desperately. So from now on Varga will no doubt tell the boys in the Kremlin what

From Darkness To Light

Given time to think things through without pressure or persuasion, the first of the 23 American boys who were delivered at Panmunjom by the Reds as unwilling to return home has straightened out his confused thoughts and decided his heart lies with his own people and his old community.

No one knows what these unfortunate soldiers have undergone at the hands of their Communist captors. Cpl. Edward Dickenson, 23, of Big Stone Gap, Va., was reluctant to talk about that. All he would say was: "It sure feels great to be back in the hands of Americans." There is a volume of meaning in these few words, and it raises hope that he will be followed by others among the captives.

Reaction of the old neighbors down around Big Stone Gap and Cracker's Neck was as warming to the cockles of one's heart as was the corporal's act itself. What these boys need more than anything else is sympathy and encouragement.

The old friends are preparing a big welcome for Eddie. They sent word that there "ain't no hard feelings" in all the countryside. There's the difference between American practice and Communist. And it's the remembrance of this difference, penetrating the confusion in the minds of those boys at Panmunjom, that will convince them they want to come home.

3,000,000 Victims

It may have been, as former President Truman termed it, only a "police action," but for more than 3,000,000 men it was war in its most dreadful form. As the final Korean casualty figures are now revealed by official sources the losses suffered by the two sides in the conflict are relatively equal.

The total for the UN forces was 1,474,269 dead and wounded-1,312,836 South Koreans, 144,173 Americans and 17,260 nationals of 15 other nations.

The new statistics outline in stark reality how the United States and the Republic of Korea bore the brunt of the fighting. Between them they suffered more than 98 per cent of the losses. The number of American dead was five times the combined dead of all other non-Korean allies.

The lesson of these losses is clear enough. When a purely localized conflict can result in the death or maiming of more than 3,000,000 men, who can bear to think of the consequences of a world-wide war which the free nations are striving so desperately to

But love of peace is not enough. The nations did not want war in Korea. The Kremlin master minds had other ideas, however.

'Explanations' Boomerang

In view of the notable lack of success they are having in persuading reluctant prisoners of war to return, the Chinese Communists may wish they had not insisted so strongly on a chance to explain the advantages of repatriation.

It was a sore blow, of course, to the pride of the Chinese Reds when tens of thousands of POWs refused adamantly to go back home after the fighting was over. Their attitude demolished, at a stroke, many of the carefully built up pretenses of Red propaganda. It exposed as a lie, for all the world to see, the claims of the Red Chinese that the troops who went into Korea were eager volunteers, convinced of the righteousness of the Communist cause.

It also made clear that many Chinese regard China under Mao as something less than an earthly paradise. The Reds felt they had to use every means available to eradicate the impression that many Chinese would prefer almost any fate to living under Communist rule.

But the attempts of the Red explanation teams to coax the POWs to return have been such an ignominious failure that Peiping has lost much face. Only two per cent have been "persuaded" to return. The others reviled the Reds so roundly and resisted the "explainers" so stoutly that there is no possible doubt of their attitude.

Horse Of Another Color

Remember the horse laughs produced by the advent of the pony tail hairdo? Well, brace yourselves. men. If a certain set of Florida clothes designers has its way, the pony tail will seem as conservative as the color black does on the modern automobile.

Race horses, it seems, are setting the pattern for the feminine wardrobe this year. At least, that's the theme Miami designers plan to introduce during the coming resort season in Florida. Such items as horse tails hanging from belts, jeckey caps and tapered pants in the gaudiest of racing colors are absolute musts for the well

"groomed" female this winter. One designer stretched his imagination to the breaking point when he fashioned a horse blanket to be thrown over the shoulder and strapped at the waist with a saddle cinch. This particular outfit will be made from plaid cotton tweed and burlap.

Be careful, gents. If you see something that looks like a fugitive from a racing stable prancing down the street, don't laugh. That may be your wife.

Backache From Sitting

Few of us reach middle life without experiencing low back pain when sitting or stooping. The condition is especially uncomfortable after sitting for a long time, more so when straightening the back on arising. This type of backache results from loss of elasticity of the muscles and ligaments and degeneration of the cushioning material [disks] between the ver-

J. Keegan of Omaha concluded that our popular lounge chairs may be a contributing fac-The seats that are most comfortable are the type least tolerated except by the young and agile. According to this physician, the lounge chair is a monstrosity which follows a design that is centuries old, based largely on trial and error or appearance and sales appeal. On the other hand, the manufacturers used more science and engineering skill in designing seats for offices, schools, and transportation facilities. It is not strange that the individual with backache prefers the hard, straight chair even in the home.

To prove his point, Dr. Keegan did several unique X-ray studies on the spines of two men and two women. Films were made from the side when the individuals were in positions varying from lying down to sitting, standing, and stooping. X-rays clearly showed that whenever the person bends forward the front part of the vertebrae comes together and force the soft disks out toward the back where they press upon the spinal cord. Pressure is accentuated if a disk ruptures. There were certain postures in which the spine was in perfect balance so that pressure upon the disk was even. The next step was to design a chair which not only held but supported the spine in this posi-

The ideal chair has a short seat and an open front. The latter permits the sitter to place the feet under the chair beneath the center of gravity. The most important feature in the design is to place the primary back support over the lower lumbar spine where back symptoms are more common. The next essential is to tilt the back of the chair to such an extent that the angle between trunk and thighs is at a minimum of 105 degrees. The primary back support should be open near seat to allow the buttocks and sacrum to project. A maximum seat length of 16 inches allows free space back of the knees for change of position of the legs. For the average man or woman a height of 16 inches permits comfortable placement of the feet on

When working on a standard 30 inch high desk or table, the seat must be raised or lowered accordingly to maintain a comfortable distance [16 inches] between the eyes and the top of the desk or table. Unless this is done the good effects of the chair are nullified because the individual must lean forward or backward. A tilt or upward inclination of 5 degrees for the seat helps to maintain a proper position against the back support. With molded or cushioned seats the weight of the entire buttocks is distributed properly.

Dr. Keegan's X-rays also dem onstrated that the stooping-lifting position creates most strain on the back and explains why it is better to squat when picking up an object from the floor. Also, on arising from a chair, try to get up without bending forward. This is easy to do when the chair is correctly designed but is difficult with a deep lounge chair.

The Value Of Wills By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW BOSTON, N. H.-In view of my recent column on the importance of Trust Funds for children and others, I must today refer to the recent terrible kidnaping and murder of the six-year-old son of Robert C. Greenlease of Kan-

What Caused Kidnaping? Apparently, Carl Hall, a son of a reputable citizen, was the cause of this frightful crime. Although Carl Hall's father knew that his boy was rather unstable, yet he left him $200,000 of property outright. If Carl had been a poor boy and trained to work, the crime might never have occurred. Or, if very little. the father had left his boy, Carl, the money in trust it probably never would have happened.

Unfortunately, money was left to the Hall boy outright, enabling him to live like a "drunken sailor" as long as it lasted; but when it was gone he was penniless, "left in the gutter." Young Hall could not readjust himself to these changed conditions. He sought to devise a plan to again get a fortune for nothing. This kidnaping was his "solution." Hence, the crime, murder, disgrace and grief which came with it. I repeat that if the money had been left in trust so that the boy received a fair sum from the bank each month, the crime might not have happened. So much for this.

An Up-To-Date Will

Now let me discuss wills, which must come before any trust funds can be provided. There are very mportant reasons for everyone to make and constantly revise a will. Perhaps your wife may die first, some relative of hers (whom you or your safety deposit box. do not like) would get her share of your property. Your wife might cut off one of your children or all of the grandchildren if she married

What About Taxes?

Assume you may die tomorrow and leave, with or without a will, considerable property to your wife. Your estate might be liable for a heavy tax upon this. Then assume that in a few years your wife should die and your children inherit this money. This could result in a second tax. In fact, without a will the grandchildren might get

You'd better leave your wife's share, at your death, to a trust company in trust for your children and grandchildren, with this provision. So long as your wife lives, she is to have the income. At her death, your children can have the income. When your grandchildren reach a certain age (say 26 years), after the death of your wife and their mother, they are to gradually get the principal, as well as the income. Remember Relatives. Charities

Have you an aunt or cousin who was very good to you when you were young? These you can remember only by a will! On the other hand, without a will your estate could go to distant relatives whom you never knew. Remember you can easily remember these old relatives and friends by adding a simple codicil, which your lawyer can quickly draw. Do it now. Never sign any paper while in your last illness. Be sure the original of your will and all codior you both get killed together in cils are in the custody of a bank, an automobile accident. Perhaps with only copies in your home safe

Why not give something to the church which brought you up, or to some hospital or other chairty? You would not live in a community without these. Then you should help them out. You can do it only by making a will or codicil. My full name is Roger W. Babson. The "W" really stands for Capt. Government By Commission-It became a standing joke in the Hoover administration that whenever the President had a decision to make he'd appoint a commission. Ike is approaching the Hoover record. It's natural that Ike doesn't know the answers on various civilian problems. He's been a military man all his life. But he also doesn't realize, as Hoover didn't, that some problems are acute and demand action immediately. They can't wait for long-range study. Failure to realize this was one thing that contributed to Hoover's downfall, and Ike is getting the same reputation for governing by commission.

Big-Business Advisers - Both Roosevelt and Truman had plenty of big - business advisers around them, but they didn't get the reputation of following big-business policies. Eisenhower has. The proposed sales tax, the exit of Secretary of Labor Durkin, slow action for farmers-all have given the impression that Ike agrees with the words of his Secretary of Defense that what's good for big business is good for the country. Sometimes the President does not appear to be acting as the President of all the people. He says he has to be above partisanship. But his ignoring of the many Democrats and independents who voted for him, his ignoring of labor, farmers and small business, just doesn't add up. On the other hand the impression is percolating through the country that he is President of big business. It accounts in part for the sudden down-drop of the Gallup Poll. which was especially marked among lower bracket income voters.

The Attack On Benson

It had to come sooner or later that the opposition to President Eisenhower would be concentrated on one of his cabinet members. So the fight is being made on Ezra Taft Benson, not for what he has done but for what he is being suspected of proposing to recommend should be done. For actually, what are being enforced today are still the laws enacted in the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Perhaps herein lies one of the major defects of the Eisenhower administration. The world does not talk about flexible price supports stand still while serious men study important problems. The rain fails talk about a two-price system to fall at the right time no matter one price for domestic consumpwhich administration is in office. Crops are plentiful or inadequate; of a gradual reduction of parity, cattle grow numerous or are hun- etc. The proposals are numerous, gry on the range with or without except that nobody dares to sughigh office.

Secretary Benson is one of the most competent men in this administration. He inherited a sprawling, overstaffed, messily political department which requires reorganization. For nearly 20 years, the Department of Agriculture has been used to build a vast political machine, one of the objects of which was to influence votes. Every effort made by Secretary Benson to smash that machine naturally encounters resistance.

The principal opposition to Benson comes from his own party and is led by Congressman Clifford R. Hope of Kansas, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, and Senator Milton R. Young of North Dakota. No charge can be made by them that Ezra Taft Benson has destroyed the doctrine of parity or weakened it, because this he has not done. The objection is that he intends to find a way to stop spending about $500,000 a day to keep prices for agricultural commodities high. The government now owns or has loans on approximately $4,000,000,000 of agricultural com-

No one advocates an absolute reversion to the law of supply and demand because it is obvious that if farm products were suddenly to be without supports and without controls, prices would be so low that the farmers would go broke. prevail. Involved in all this is the problem of personnel. Too many persons are employed in the Department of Agriculture and they cost too much money. The Hoover Commission recommended a reorganization of the department and the Congress has authorized it. Suggestions had to be made before November 1 and have been made.

Secretary Benson believes that his reorganization plan will streamline the department and get for the taxpayer a dollar of work for a dollar paid. Those who have for years felt that they had a vested interest in a government job are worried whether their particular jobs will continue in existence. Politicians who live by patronage are concerned over the elimination of jobs. In a word, Benson is chopping off the suckers on the tree of life. He encounters the kind of resistance which many typify by the word "impractical."

It is impractical to cut jobs in a congressional election year and as that comes around on every even year, it is impractical to do anything constructive on even numbered years. Also it is impractical to do the same during the second half of odd numbered years because it might encroach on the even numbered years. So, a wise man never risks his political neck by doing anything at all to save the taxpayer from the high cost of government.

That is what Ezra Taft Benson is up against.

The central mission of the carrier task forces is, after all, to make it possible for the Navy to attack targets on the perimeter of the Soviet Union with airborne nuclear weapons. Yet cannot almost undetectable submarines, carrying almost uninterceptable missiles in their holds, do this same job more effectively and very much more cheaply than vast ar-

What chance will a big carrier have against an atomic missile which need not score a direct hit, which cannot be intercepted by piloted aircraft, and which can be fired from atomic-powered submarines surfacing many miles beyond the carrier's protective screen? These are not the only questions which need asking. A Slight Delay

Eugene Varga, Hungarian-born Soviet economist, predicts that the economic system of the United States is headed for a crash. Production is rising, he admits but, he adds darkly, such a rise "only underscores the correctness of the basic position of Marx's teachings dition is especially uncomfortable ... the level of production is at the highest just before an economic crisis."

It might be said, with equal aptness, that a depression is at its lowest just before an upturn.

In 1946, Varga predicted an early depression in the United States. In 1947, he stuck to his story that a depression was just around the corner. In 1948, with no U. S. depression in sight, Varga said that none might develop until about 10 years after the end of the war. Meanwhile, he suggested, it might be well for Russia to cooperate with the West. This heresy was promptly punished.

Though Varga had been personal economic adviser to Stalin, and had been considered Russia's top economist, he was dismissed from the Soviet Academy of Sciences for going against the party line. The political science institution he headed was dissolved.

In 1949, Varga recanted, repudiated his "errors," and denied that he was "of Western orientation" or an "anti-Soviet traitor to the working class." Now he is back in the old groove of predicting dire happenings in the United States.

Communist leaders believe in American depression because they need one desperately. So from now on Varga will no doubt tell the boys in the Kremlin what they want to hear.

From Darkness To Light

Given time to think things through without pressure or persuasion, the first of the 23 American boys who were delivered at Panmunjom by the Reds as unwilling to return home has straightened out his confused thoughts and decided his heart lies with his own people and his old community.

No one knows what these unfortunate soldiers have undergone at the hands of their Communist captors. Cpl. Edward Dickenson, 23, of Big Stone Gap, Va., was reluctant to talk about that. All he would say was: "It sure feels great to be back in the hands of Americans." There is a volume of meaning in these few words, and it raises hope that he will be followed by others among the captives.

Reaction of the old neighbors down around Big Stone Gap and Cracker's Neck was as warming to the cockles of one's heart as was the corporal's act itself. What these boys need more than anything else is sympathy and encouragement.

The old friends are preparing a big welcome for Eddie. They sent word that there "ain't no hard feelings" in all the countryside. There's the difference between American practice and Communist. And it's where back symptoms are more the remembrance of this difference, penetrating the confusion in the minds of those boys at Panmunjom, tilt the back of the chair to such stead? No, said Hall, and asked tial armor:

3,000,000 Victims

It may have been, as former President Truman termed it, only a "police action," but for more than 3,000,000 men it was war in its most dreadful form. As the final Korean casualty figures are now revealed by official sources the losses suffered by the two sides in the conflict are relatively equal.

The total for the UN forces was 1,474,269 dead and wounded-1,312,836 South Koreans, 144,173 Americans and 17,260 nationals of 15 other nations.

The new statistics outline in stark reality how the United States and the Republic of Korea bore the brunt of the fighting. Between them they suffered more than 98 per cent of the losses. The number of American dead was five times the combined dead of all other non-Korean allies.

The lesson of these losses is clear enough. When a purely localized conflict can result in the death or maiming of more than 3,000,000 men, who can bear to think of the consequences of a world-wide war which the free nations are striving so desperately to

But love of peace is not enough. The nations did not want war in Korea. The Kremlin master minds had other ideas, however.

'Explanations' Boomerang

In view of the notable lack of success they are having in persuading reluctant prisoners of war to return, the Chinese Communists may wish they had not insisted so strongly on a chance to explain the advantages of repatriation.

It was a sore blow, of course, to the pride of the Chinese Reds when tens of thousands of POWs refused adamantly to go back home after the fighting was over. Their attitude demolished, at a stroke, many of the carefully built up pretenses of Red propaganda. It exposed as a lie, for all the world to see, the claims of the Red Chinese that the troops who went into Korea were eager volunteers, convinced of the righteousness of the Communist cause.

It also made clear that many Chinese regard China under Mao as something less than an earthly paradise. The Reds felt they had to use every means available to eradicate the impression that many Chinese would prefer almost any fate to living under Communist rule.

But the attempts of the Red explanation teams to coax the POWs to return have been such an ignominious failure that Peiping has lost much face. Only two per cent have been "persuaded" to return. The others reviled the Reds so roundly and resisted the "explainers" so stoutly that there is no possible doubt concluded that our popular lounge tolerated except by the young and agile. According to this physician, the lounge chair is a monstrosity trial and error or appearance and sales appeal. On the other hand, the manufacturers used more science and engineering skill in designing seats for offices, schools, and transportation facilities. It is not strange that the individual with backache prefers the hard, straight chair even in the home.

To prove his point, Dr. Keegan did several unique X-ray studies on the spines of two men and two women. Films were made from the side when the individuals were in positions varying from lying down to sitting, standing, and stooping. X-rays clearly showed that whenever the person bends forward the front part of the vertebrae comes together and force the soft disks out toward the back where they press upon the spinal cord. Pressure is accentuated if a disk ruptures. There were certain postures in which the spine was in perfect balance so that pressure upon the disk was even. The next step was to design a chair which not only held but supported the spine in this posi-

When working on a standard 30 inch high desk or table, the seat must be raised or lowered accordingly to maintain a comfortable distance [16 inches] between the eyes and the top of the desk good effects of the chair are nulli fied because the individual must lean forward or backward. A tilt or upward inclination of 5 degrees for the seat helps to maintain a proper position against the back support. With molded or cushioned seats the weight of the entire buttocks is distributed properly.

Dr. Keegan's X-rays also dem onstrated that the stooping-lifting position creates most strain on the back and explains why it is better to squat when picking up an object from the floor. Also, on arising from a chair, try to get up without bending forward. This is easy to designed but is difficult with a

hey're not the killers they used to be

TYPHOID FEVER ... DIPHTHERIA ... SCARLET FEVER ... PNEUMONIA ... TUBERCULOSIS

TN 1900, there were over 35,000 deaths I from typhoid fever. Last year, there were about 100. Deaths from diphtheria decreased from 29,000 to less than 300; scarlet fever, 6,300 to less than 40. And during the half-century, our population has doubled.

In the last ten years alone, annual deaths from pneumonia and influenza declined from 74,500 to 47,300; deaths from tuberculosis from 57,700 to about 26,000.

America can take pride in the giant strides that our doctors, hospitals, medical schools and research men have made in combating disease. But we must remember that much still remains to be done-and this will need the continued support of all of us. In particular, now that we are living longer, there is an ever-growing need for coping with the diseases of middle life and old age.

The life insurance business recognizes a responsibility to aid the work for health improvement. Through the Life Insurance Medical Research Fund, it is supporting the fight against the greatest killer of Americans today -diseases of the heart. Since the Fund was organized in 1945, it has made available over $51/2 million for specific research projects and fellowships in this field. This Fund is just one example of how the life insurance business is helping in the fight for a healthy nation.

But more important are the contributions that come from the hearts and pockets of individual citizens. The time and money you give in your community to local and national health and welfare organizations will speed the pace of future progress.

Americans have always found that the best way to solve a common problem is by everybody pitching in.
